ASUM studies state legislation for liquor license

By Rich Landers
Montana Kaimin Reporter

ASUM is considering the possibility of proposing to the Montana legislature legislation which would provide authorization for colleges and universities to sell and serve alcoholic beverages.

The problems and alternatives of securing a license to serve alcoholic beverages on the University of Montana campus were explained by Lawrence Eck, Missoula attorney, at a special Student Union Board meeting yesterday.

Eck, a member of the law firm Goldman, McChesney and Datsopoulos, has prepared a legal brief for ASUM which analyzes the possibility of serving liquor or beer on campus.

Eck said securing a liquor or beer license would probably be difficult because of a "ratio system" used in Montana which correlates the number of licenses allowed in an area to the number of inhabitants.

The Missoula area already has its quota of liquor and beer licenses, Eck said. He said an existing license could be bought if a licensee willing to sell his license could be found.

A beer license in Missoula would cost about $7,500 to $12,500 and a liquor license would cost about $45,000 to $65,000.

If a license could be obtained, the University would have to meet requirements established by the Montana Liquor Control Board and certain statutory mandates and requirements of the Missoula city ordinances.

A Montana statute provides that no license can be granted for distributing alcoholic beverages within 600 feet of a "school."

Eck said it is not clear in Montana law whether a college or university is classified as a school. He said a number of court decisions have held that the term "school," as used in legislation forbidding the dispensing of alcoholic beverages within a certain distance of a school, has been declared to apply primarily to public schools that educate "children."

Eck said it would be easy to draft an exception to the present Montana law to clarify this matter.

Problems are posed by zoning ordinances enacted by the City of Missoula, Eck said. The Missoula City Council has zoned the University as residential. This zoning classification has been designated as an area where the sale of liquor is prohibited.

Eck proposed two approaches to the zoning problem: change zoning regulations for the section of the campus on which a liquor establishment might be maintained, or petition for a variance or exception to the zoning ordinance.

Eck was optimistic about the possibilities of obtaining a variance from the existing zoning ordinance from the City of Missoula. Although he discouraged litigation, Eck said the University would have a strong legal case arguing that the City of Missoula has no jurisdiction over the campus and no means of enforcing any zoning ordinances. Eck proposed this alternative as a "last resort."

Eck said another problem which must be considered is who would hold a license, or in what name it would be issued, should one be secured.

Eck said there are options to securing a liquor or beer license. He said the three best options for ASUM are:

- To secure a "club license;"

• To obtain an exemption for special events where liquor might be served "by amending Montana law,"

• To obtain an "outright" exemption to the present law authorizing the issuance of licenses to colleges and universities.

A "club" as defined by Montana law is an "association of individuals for purposes of mutual entertainment and convenience." Eck said it might be possible to establish ASUM as "club" which would enable it to sell beer. The club license would be less expensive than a liquor or beer license and would not require a change in existing Montana law.

Eck said it might be possible to serve liquor and beer at special functions, conventions and dinners without securing any type of license. He said that this procedure could become very technical.

Eck said that a special permit might be available to ASUM to serve beer on special occasions if legislation is passed to expand the present law on the sale of beer by permit.

He said that this "may not be a satisfactory solution" and that liberal proposals for exceptions and amendments to Montana law would likely receive strong opposition from the Montana Tavern Association.

"The state liquor lobby is very influential at the Legislature," Eck said.

Eck's third proposal, to draft special legislation applicable to colleges and Universities authorizing liquor and beer licenses, is being considered by ASUM. Eck said the legislation would have to be "narrowly drawn" to restrict the events and manner in which alcoholic beverages would be served.

"Otherwise," Eck said, "the proposal would undoubtedly be strongly opposed by the state liquor lobby and members of the public who think that alcoholic beverages should not be sold on public university campuses."

Eck advised ASUM to secure the approval of the State Board of Regents before proposing legislation. He said the legal aspects of providing alcoholic beverages on campus could probably be resolved. "It's a matter of convincing people that liquor should be allowed on campus," he said.

ASUM is short on time to get regents' approval of proposals. The next scheduled regents' meeting is on

City Council accepts bikeway bids

The City Council accepted bids for the second time last night for construction of a bikeway underpass beneath the Milwaukee railroad tracks at the south end of the Van Buren Street Bridge.

Three bids from Missoula construction companies were accepted and referred to the council's Finance and Audit Committee for consideration. The city accepted bids for the job last month, but only one was submitted and the council rejected it as too high.

Three bids were submitted. They ranged from $30,523 to $16,500. The bid the council rejected a month ago as being too high was for $28,000.

Alderman John Patterson requested the city attorney's office to determine whether the city has the right to enact an ordinance closing retail stores on Sunday. Patterson said he would like to see the stores close in order to conserve energy. He added there would have to be exceptions such as drug stores selling prescriptions.

After the short meeting the council and its attorneys retired into executive session to discuss the Russell Center developers' suit against the city. Last month, the council revoked a building permit that had been issued to the developers on the basis that the permit had been issued in violation of city zoning ordinances and possibly Montana Senate Bill 208, a subdivision law.

Kaimin, Print Shop keep mum on intermediaries' suggestions

By Wally Parker
Montana Kaimin Reporter

Neither side is saying much about recommendations made Friday for settlement of the contract dispute between the Montana Kaimin and the University of Montana Printing Services, which prints the Kaimin.

The final set of recommendations, which were agreed upon by intermediaries for both sides, call for mutual concessions. However, there apparently still will be some hard negotiating in the future when the Kaimin and the print shop sit down together at the negotiating table.

Al Madison, printing services director, said that while he had not had time to study the recommendations in depth, he thinks there are still three "problem areas."

Kaimin editor Bill Owen did not comment on the recommendations, saying he had not had time over the weekend to study them. Conrad Yunker, business manager of the Kaimin, would not comment either. He said he had to confer with Publications Board, the Kaimin publisher, before he commented publicly.

The three problem areas cited by Madison are:

- The contract recommendation calls for the print shop to assume responsibility for proofreading the Kaimin. The Kaimin presently pays for this and is "100 per cent responsible for proofreading the Kaimin," Madison said.
- The recommendation stipulates that the print shop will pay the cost of composition plus 50 per cent of the cost of any display advertisement the Kaimin is required to reprint because of a major print shop error. A major error is defined as an error in price, place or time.

• The recommendation indicates the print shop and Kaimin will each pay 50 per cent of the cost if an edition of the paper is cancelled because a mechanical breakdown in the print shop makes distribution by 11 a.m. impossible. The editor would determine whether to cancel the edition.

Madison said he approved of other clauses in the recommendations covering advertising copy deadlines, the provision for a new billing system to start next fall which would itemize labor charges for advertising and news printing work performed and the establishment of an advisory committee to recommend general policy for relations between the print shop and the Kaimin.

According to the recommendation, the new contract, if agreed to, will be in effect until Nov. 4, 1974. Specific contract clauses may be revised by written consent of both parties.

It is unclear what will happen if a contract cannot be agreed upon, Jerry Holloran, a visiting lecturer in journalism and one of the intermediaries representing the Kaimin, said yesterday.

No meeting time between Madison, Yunker and Owen has been determined yet.

Energy crisis committee recommends cut-backs

The University of Montana's energy crisis committee recommended 14 ways of conserving energy on campus to Robert Pantzer, UM president, at its first meeting yesterday.

The committee recommended:

- Re-emphasizing instruction to cleaning crews to light areas only as needed during cleaning operations.
- Setting back thermostats in UM buildings to 65 to 68 degrees.
- Discouraging the practice of leaving UM vehicles idling while performing services.
- Using headbolt heaters in UM vehicles judiciously.
- Turning off steam tunnel lights when not in use.
- Turning off lights in any other area when not in use.
- Doubling up on transportation whenever possible.
- Looking for places where fluorescent lights can be removed.
- Not installing holiday lighting.
- Adjusting ventilation systems to reasonably reduce the amount of fresh air, which must be heated, in buildings with fresh air ventilation.
- Discouraging installation of holiday lighting in all departments.
- Eliminating the installation of window-mounted air conditioning units except where necessary for cooling equipment.
- Reducing or eliminating the hours of flood lighting the face of Main Hall.
- Reviewing the need for vending machine installations.

J. A. (Ted) Parker, director of the Physical Plant, said some coffee vending machines use 500 watts of electricity for every cup of coffee they dispense.

He also said the flood lights in front of Main Hall have been off for a few weeks already.

Members of the committee which was selected last week are: George Mitchell, administrative vice president, chairman, and Parker, both appointed by Pantzer; Ronald Erickson, chemistry professor, and Graham Thompson, assistant geology professor, both appointed by the Faculty Senate executive board; Christine Anderson, junior in journalism, and Gordon Wax, junior in business administration; both appointed by Garry South, ASUM president.

Housing committee formed

A committee has been appointed to seek solutions to the shortage of unmarried student housing in areas surrounding the University of Montana campus.

The formation of the committee was announced yesterday in a joint statement released by UM President Robert Pantzer and Missoula Mayor Robert Brown.

"... We have not reached the stage where only rebuilding the areas adjacent to the campus will correct the situation," the statement said.

Brown and Pantzer said the problems of high rental rates, declining real estate values and the lack of proper building inspections and inadequate maintenance result in a severe shortage of adequate housing for unmarried students.

They said construction of inexpensive housing that could solve the shortage for unmarried students has been blocked by zoning restrictions. According to the statement, the University is unable to attack the housing situation because of "bonding commitments on dormitories, severe budget limitations and a leveling of enrollment."

The following persons have been selected to examine the housing shortage: John Patterson, city councilman and member of the City Zoning Commission; Fred Thomson, a city councilman; Rustem Medora, UM associate professor of pharmacognosy; Ian Lange, UM assistant geology professor; Mrs. George Turman and Mrs. Gardner Cromwell.

Coalition okays new constitution

The Community Coalition (CC) voted unanimously yesterday to tentatively accept a proposed CC constitution.

CC is an organization comprised of students and members of the Missoula community who are interested in the preservation of ethnic studies at the University.

Tentative approval of the CC constitution was made in order to implement the process by which funding allocations from Central Board (CB) are received.

To receive funding from CB a student group or club must be recognized as a student organization, keep an account through the University and submit a constitution to the Student Union Board (SUB). Tayah Kalgaard, SUB member, said yesterday.

The CC will give final acceptance to the proposed CC constitution after the constitution has been reviewed by CC members Winter Quarter.

Rape, pillage and blunder

Yesterday, Richard Nixon bowed to pressures from the automotive industry and called for relaxation of 1975 automobile air pollution standards without bothering to consult the Environmental Protection Agency. He also eased fuel allocations for all aircraft other than commercial and military—we would assume that Air Force One falls into this special category.

The Senate passed the Alaska pipeline bill, 80-5, Friday and sent the bill to the President. A national clamor now appears to be building to ease pollution standards on other national industries.

If the fuel shortage is as critical as it is made out to be, why have Canadian oil companies been forced to reduce daily production by 26,200 barrels of crude oil a day? Sunday, the Saskatchewan Mineral Resources Department announced that this reduction was made necessary because the United States had cut back on oil purchases from Canada.

Oil experts have said that only 15 per cent of the world's oil has been used up. The other 85 per cent is available, although it is harder to get. It appears that the fuel crisis is part of a much greater plan. A plan by the oil companies and United States government to scare the American people into allowing a continued rape of the environment.

Schuster calls for boycott of evaluation forms

To the faculty: I, for one, shall refuse to return the faculty evaluation forms we received Friday. May I suggest that you consider doing so also, thus boycotting the enterprise until it is done by cooperation between students and faculty?

Of the 14 points on the present forms, only one, viz. item 4, which refers to stimulating intellectual curiosity, reflects an educational goal appropriate to a university. A couple more items are at least attempts to get at effective means for attaining educational goals. But there is nothing in these forms about knowledge, about gaining new perspectives, about increasing one's ability to reason, to express, to see relations, to see. . . . Nothing about the relevance of material to a discipline or to understanding the human condition. Furthermore, no procedure is used to exclude as disqualified judges students who have not attended a course regularly and/or have not done the assigned work.

The third page, which asks for students' suggestions for improving a course, is fine. (I shall use that page, just for myself.) For the rest, I fear that using these forms would tend to lower the quality of education here. They resemble the evaluation forms which, according to published studies, have resulted in an inverse relation between student evaluations and learning (in the broadest, deepest sense).

Please understand that I am not opposing student evaluation of teaching. I still think, as I did years ago when, in Montana Forum, I made the motion from which "The Book" was born, that we very much need student evaluation of teaching. I plead, as I have long pled without being heard, that the procedures be determined by a committee composed of faculty representatives chosen by the faculty and student representatives chosen by Central Board, not by a committee of students with a couple of faculty members chosen by the students. Let us all outgrow the attitude which last year caused the students to reject an offer of financial support of this project out of fear that they would lose control to "the enemy." If faculty and students cannot agree on common educational goals, and on criteria for evaluating teaching performance in pursuit of those goals, let's fold.

My stand is that we shall serve the students, ourselves, and the cooperative undertaking called 'education' if we refuse the one-way 'cooperation' asked of us this quarter, and work with the students for a better procedure next quarter.

Why is Black Studies special?

Editor: It was with amusement that I read the front page of the Montana Kaimin last Tuesday. The usual watergate erasures and now an extension to the Black Studies scandal. The whites and blacks are indicated to be at it again: this time white intend to wipe out the Black Studies program at the University of Montana.

I have not yet made a decision as to where I stand on this issue; if there is an issue. Perhaps you could clarify some comments made in the Kaimin that would lend some objectivity to this topic.

(1) Is it my understanding that Black Studies were to be continued during 1974-75 and that $4000 additional was offered to the department to supplement their budget. That prior to this offering, their cutback was no more severe than that of any other department. Is this true? Did the other departments also receive $4000 additional?

(2) Is it true that President Pantzer and Dean Solberg have agreed to add an additional $5000 to the Black Studies budget? Why is this? Is $5000 being added to forestry, physical education, zoology, etc.

(3) It is stated that the Black Studies budget is in current financial difficulty. Is this true? Is it solely because of budgetary cutbacks or is mismanagement of funds involved?

(4) Did Ulysses Doss state that Black Studies is in a fight for survival of blacks as a people? Is this a logical deduction when 40 black students, some of whom have been recruited by the Black Studies instructors, receive fee waivers to attend the UM? And, travel expenses are allowed the Black Studies program to recruit these students to the University. Is this characteristic of other departments at the University? Are their students offered fee waivers to the extent the blacks are allowed such waivers? Are proportionate funds offered other departments for recruitment?

(5) Is there such a thing as reverse discrimination?

CB opened a can of worms

Editor: A number of letters have been published in the Montana Kaimin, both pro and con, in regard to $163 allotted by Central Board to the Committee to Un-elect President Nixon. The issue of whether or not you are in favor of the impeachment of Richard Nixon should not be the matter of principle interest in this particular controversy.

I believe this to be a mis-use of students funds, if only that CB has by their action established a very dangerous precedent. They have opened up a very large can of worms.

CB allotted an amount of student funds to support the advertising campaign of a small group of students that had spontaneously organized a committee to promote a principle in which they believed.

There is no way in hell that CB could, at any time in the future, refuse to allocate an equal or greater amount of student funds to support the advertising campaign of any small group of students that spontaneously organize a committee to promote any principle in which they believe.

Does CB realize the avenues of approach they have opened to access of student funds? This decision, apparently hastily made without due consideration to possible repercussions, ill advised if advised at all, may be the downfall of CB's power of allocation of student funds.

In an institution in receipt of federal government funding, CB can not discriminate as to the value to the institution in regard to further requests for funding of similar projects. Any attempt at judgment of the right or wrong of a similar campaign would be legally regarded as discrimination against a minority group; un-allowable under the law of the land.

CB has created this perilous situation and it's theirs to contend with. My only further comment at this time, is "lotsa luck."

AP in brief

The White House has decided to surrender to a federal judge a bundle of documents in the milk fund case, including a tape recording of a key meeting between President Nixon and top administration officials, government lawyers said yesterday.

President Nixon signed legislation last night raising the government's debt ceiling after Senate sponsors of a plan for public financing of presidential and congressional elections dropped their controversial amendment. The bill establishes a temporary debt ceiling of $475.7 billion until next June 30.

The Montana Legislature's special committee on gambling concluded its work yesterday by approving bills to set up four forms of gambling in the state. However, the joint House-Senate panel rejected a proposed law to legalize and regulate punchboards and sports pools. The approved bills provide for legalizing and regulating certain card games, bingo and raffles and a state-operated lottery. The proposals are to be submitted to the legislature in January.

President Nixon's new choice as the nation's energy czar, William Simon, said yesterday he will press for a decision on gasoline rationing "in the very near future, and I emphasize very." Simon is deputy secretary of the treasury and is to retain that post while heading the new energy agency.

Huntley says journalists arrogant

By Liann Bjelland
Montana Kaimin Reporter

Editor's note: This is the final part of a four part series on Chet Huntley.

Former NBC television news commentator Chet Huntley said he has detected an "arrogance" among journalists.

In a Montana Kaimin interview Nov. 3, Huntley said he first observed this conceit and arrogance several years ago. He said he believes it is very unbecoming to journalists and completely unnecessary.

"There's nothing unique about a journalist at all . . . it's only his product which is rather sacred," he said.

He criticized biased journalism for appealing too frequently on the front pages of newspapers. He said the feature story should never be reported as "hard" news, as it has been in the past.

The former newsmen attacked the "new journalism" in a speech addressed to the Montana Press Association convention Aug. 18. He said he agreed somewhat with former Vice President Spiro Agnew's attacks on the press.

The American press, including radio, television, print and all other forms of communication, is the "best in the world," Huntley told the Kaimin.

"It's more complete, it's more varied . . . we have a rich press in this country," he said.

However, Huntley did note several shortcomings in television.

The year 1952 marked the beginning of the age of television in the United States. In 1952, many educators implied that television was going to be the miraculous tool for future education, according to Huntley.

He said television has been given a good try in educational processes, but it is no more the "miracle instrument" than is film or any other visual aid.

Huntley emphasized that the educational function of television is no better than the material that is put into it. He said that television, if properly used, could be of much greater value than it is now.

Marshall McLuhan in his book, The Medium is the Message, said "societies have always been shaped more by the nature of the media by which men communicate than by the content of the communication."

Huntley said he reluctantly agrees with McLuhan's statement.

"The television picture is somewhat bigger than life—something . . . gets distorted when you say it over television, as opposed to saying it in newspapers, or saying it on the radio," he said.

He suggested that the American people will ultimately become better-adjusted to television. They will stop regarding the television personalities as "superstars or extraordinary people, which they are not," Huntley said.

A recent poll indicated that television is now the nation's primary news source. Huntley said he believes too many Americans are relying on television as their only source of information.

"They are not as well-informed as they might otherwise be . . . because television cannot give you all the news that's fit to print, or all the news that should be printed or all the news that's available," he said.

Huntley said he believes print is the most credible medium of communication.

Following graduation from the University of Washington in Seattle in 1934, Huntley worked at radio stations in Seattle, Spokane, Portland and the three network affiliates in Los Angeles.

In 1937, he was hired by the NBC affiliate, in 1939 he joined the CBS affiliate. From 1951-55, Huntley worked at the ABC affiliate.

In 1956, The Huntley-Brinkley Report first appeared on national television.

The Huntley-Brinkley news team broadcasted about four thousand daily newscasts. It covered eight political conventions, four presidential elections, the funerals of late presidents Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy and two manned voyages to the moon.

In 1970, Huntley returned to Montana.

Huntley said he enjoys living in Montana where he said he has developed a more reflective, leisurely and relaxed approach to everything.

Trip to China scheduled for summer

A trip to the People's Republic of China will be sponsored next summer by the University of Montana Far Eastern Association for Understanding Oriental Arts and Cultures.

The Rev. John Wang, UM assistant professor of Chinese and Spanish said people interested in the trip should contact him.

The trip, which will begin the latter part of June, should last from four to six weeks, he said.

The trip is open to UM faculty members interested in the Far East, students of Chinese, members of the association and, if places are available, to other UM personnel.

The purposes of the trip are to study the Chinese educational system—participants will visit schools and universities—to learn about recent linguistic changes and to get to know the Chinese people and their land, Wang said.

Wang said that in early October the Far Eastern Association asked the liaison office of the People's Republic of China in Washington D.C. if such a trip was possible and reviewed a favorable answer. The association has since contacted Peking but no reply has arrived yet.

Editor will speak at Alumni College

Gene Marine, a former senior editor of Ramparts, will be the featured speaker at the University of Montana Alumni College which will be held in Pacific Grove, Calif., Feb. 22-24.

Marine is the author of America the Raped, Food Pollution, The Black Panthers and A Male Guide to Women's Liberation.

The purpose of the Alumni College is to give UM faculty and alumni an opportunity to meet and discuss contemporary world issues, Deanna Sheriff, assistant for alumni relations, said last week.

Dorothy Powers, editorial and feature writer for the Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Wash., Don Oliver, NBC television news correspondent and Robert Lazich, announcer for NBC radio news in San Francisco, will discuss changes in communication during a series of seminars entitled "Dimensions of Change." George Oechsli, alumni director, Sheriff and the Alumni College faculty will also participate in the program.

University faculty who will lead discussions during the weekend are Mary Cummings, assistant professor of social work; Jon Driessen, assistant professor of sociology; Louis Hayes, chairman of the political science department; Harry Fritz, assistant professor of history; David Emmons, assistant professor of history, and Richard Adler, assistant professor of English.

The cost of the college is $85 and includes the cost of room, board and registration. Sheriff said a minimum of 60 persons is required, but only 100 persons will be accepted because of space limitations.

Persons interested in attending the alumni college can make reservations by writing the UM Alumni Center and enclosing a $50 deposit.

Wang said he did not know yet how many visas would be granted but he said he expects the number to range from 15 to 25.

Students apply for moving job

More than 150 University of Montana students have applied for jobs to help move library materials to the new UM Library during Christmas vacation, Del Flemer, warehouse foreman for Blair Transfer & Storage Co., said yesterday.

Earlier this month, Flemer said the moving company would hire about twenty students to help pack and unpack library volumes.

According to Flemer, the company plans to hire an equal number of men and women. Students selected for the job will be contacted by Dec. 7, he said.

The last day of final week, Dec. 14, is the earliest date the students would begin moving the books, he said.

Blair Transfer & Storage Co. will coordinate the move with the physical plant department and the library staff.

The UM Far Eastern Association was set up in 1971. It sponsored two Far Eastern art exhibits and numerous lectures on Far Eastern civilizations and politics. It also promotes study of the Orient.

The association's officers are Gianna Ranuzzi, chairman, senior in Italian; John Waite, junior in history, and Debbie Doyle, junior in general studies, as co-chairmen. Wang is faculty advisor.

Eck gives options

Dec. 10 and they will not meet again until late in January. All legislation must be introduced to the Legislature before Jan. 10 to avoid going through the Rules Committee.

Attending the meeting with Eck were Garry South, ASUM president; Ray Chapman, UC director; Lynn Huffman and Dennis Dean, SUB representatives; John Layson, UC Food Service assistant director, and George Mitchell, UM administrative vice president.

SUB will meet Thursday to discuss legislative proposals for selling alcoholic beverages on campus.

Final week schedule

The University of Montana registrar's office lists the following information about final week:

The final week of the 1973 Autumn Quarter will be Monday through Friday, Dec. 10 to 14.

Grizzlies lose on coast

Portland State edged the University of Montana Grizzlies 66-64 last night to continue the UM losing streak.

The Grizzlies dropped contests to San Jose State and Portland (University of) over the weekend.

The Portland State game was a close contest all the way through with the Vikings taking a two-point lead with 1:02 remaining in the game. UM's Benny DeMers then had a shot blocked and the Vikings took the ball down and scored another bucket.

KYLT Sportscaster Bill Schwanke said that DeMers' shot was victim of an obvious goal tending violation that the officials did not call.

Kevin Rocheleau scored from half-court on the final buzzer to give the Grizzlies their last two points.

The Grizzlies were awarded 10 foul shots in the contest compared to 32 for Portland State. Two of those foul shots came in the second half, UM hit on six foul shots and the Vikings were successful on 15. UM scored eight more field goals than the Vikings.

Montana's scoring leaders were Ken McKenzie with 16, Robin Selvig and DeMers, each with 14.

Tyree Foster led Portland State with 19.

The Grizzlies opened their season Friday night with a 79-77 loss to San Jose State in San Jose, Calif. Heathcote said that the Grizzlies played well in the San Jose game until McKenzie was forced to the bench because of foul trouble. McKenzie dumped in 32 points in the contest. UM made some costly turnover mistakes to lose the game in the final minutes.

Saturday night found the Grizzlies being tromped by the University of Portland 96-76. The Portland fiasco featured what Heathcote termed "the poorest guard performance I think I've had in all my years of coaching."

Heathcote used every guard on the bench to find a combination that could function successfully against the Portland press. The combination never materialized and the Grizzlies were handed their second defeat in two games. McKenzie again dominated the Grizzly part of the game. He scored 27 more points to give him 59 through the first two games to go along with most of the Montana rebounds.

The Grizzlies have centered their offense around the 6'-9" McKenzie. Heathcote hoped to get more scoring help from his guards and more rebounding from forwards Larry Smedley, and Tim Stambaugh.

Heathcote said that he would still go with his starting lineup that he named before the beginning of the season.

The Grizzlies play Augustana Thursday night and Southern Colorado Friday night in the field house.

Sending off the football team with cheers, a member of the students met at the Northern Pacific depot at 9 o'clock last night.

Because the team must obey training rules the rally was held at 9 o'clock, although the train did not leave until 12:05 o'clock this morning—Montana Kaimin 1931.

Broncos destroy Coyotes, receive Pioneer Bowl bid

Boise State won its way into the NCAA National semi-finals Saturday by demolishing South Dakota 53-10.

The Big Sky Conference Champion Broncos will meet Louisiana Tech in Wichita Falls, Texas Saturday and the winner of that game will play in the Camelia Bowl on Dec. 15. Louisiana Tech won their way into the play-off game by beating Western Illinois 18-13.

Saturday's game will be regionally televised.

Axe falls on UI coach

University of Idaho Head Football Coach Don Robbins, and his entire coaching staff were given the option of resigning or not being rehired next year.

The Idaho Argonaut, University of Idaho daily newspaper, reported Friday that the University of Idaho Athletic Board of Control voted Thursday in an executive session to give Robbins and his coaching staff the ultimatum.

The 6-4 vote with one abstention does not include Ed Troxel, head track coach and an assistant to Robbins during the fall months, the Argonaut reports.

The Board said that they felt that Robbins had a negative attitude toward the conference and a pessimistic feeling toward the whole

Big Sky Commissioner John Roning said most of the income from television rights, gate receipts and other incidental incomes of the play-off game will be divided among Big Sky Conference teams. Roning predicted member schools would receive between $9,000 and $12,000.

Roning said the NCAA takes the first $100,000 profit, the Big Sky Conference Office takes a fifth of what is left and Boise takes another fifth. The rest is divided among the remaining Big Sky Conference Schools.

state and that is why they decided to give him the ultimatum.

The Argonaut story attributed to the Friday Lewiston Morning Tribune said that the Board felt Robbins brought about his own downfall because of these attitudes.

The decision is not final because the board can only make a recommendation to UI President Ernest Hartung. Hartung is expected to take the issue up before the Idaho Board of Regents at their meeting in Pocatello Thursday and Friday, reported the Argonaut.

Distressed damsels in need of a name

There is a group of attractive women students on campus in search of a name. The student who takes the time to fulfill the group's wishes will be the recipient of an eight-gallon keg of beer and a season ticket to the University of Montana basketball games.

The group is a pom-pom team and will entertain the crowd at the basketball games. Suggestions for names are to be turned in at the Montana Kaimin office or the envelope posted on the Copper Commons window. Suggestions will be taken until 4 p.m. Thursday. The winner will be announced at the Montana-Augustana games Thursday night. Contest entrants must write the suggested name, their name and phone number on the slip of paper they turn into the contest.

The Montana-Augustana game will be free to UM students, faculty and staff. These persons are urged to pick up their tickets at the field house ticket office. The tickets will not be given at the door prior to the game.

Nearly all babies have blue eyes at birth, but the permanent color appears in the first few weeks. A baby does not shed tears until it is about three months old.

Peoples wins again

Montana State Champion Bill Peoples won the Western Montana College Singles Handball Championship for the third year in a row Saturday by beating Stu Keller of Missoula 21-12 and 21-10.

Peoples is a University of Montana student and the National Handball Singles Champion.
